Last week

Something I really love doing is biking up to Richmond (specifically Point Pinole) and then BART-ing back to Berkeley in the evening.

I also generally really like El Cerrito and walking around the hills up there, though you'll probably need to get a bus. Al's Big Burger in El Cerrito is also close to the BART and is cool.

Another BART + bus trip is going into Downtown Oakland on BART and then bussing up to Reinhardt Redwood Regional Park.

My roommate speaks highly of Orinda but I've never been - apparently there are some geocaches around there!

If you're feeling a bit more adventurous taking the Capital Corridor train to Sacramento & Davis is my favourite day trip. I'd highly recommend the rail museum in Sacramento. (You can even take a bike and bike between Sacramento & Davis! Biking along I80 is an experience but cool)

Another one would be taking BART to Embarcadero in SF and then taking the ferry out to Angel Island or Sausalito. Angel Island is beautiful!

You can also take a ferry to Larkspur and take the SMART train from there up into other parts of Marin / Sonoma.

Yeah - sorry for nerding out over your question - hope some of these sound fun!
